The abbreviated service restrictions meanings will be explained at the bottom of every timetable. NSch means not school days, this means that all the times listed under that service restriction will not run unless it's out of term time. Sch means the times listed under this service restriction will only occur in term time.

How to read bus timetables - Online

Bus timetables are often easier to read online and are likely to be more up to date than those posted at bus stops. If you know the service number and bus company, simply type this into Google to find the company's online timetable e.g. 'bus X13 Stagecoach'. If you do not know the service number or bus company but know somewhere you would like to travel to you can also use Google by typing in for example 'bus Haverhill to Cambridge' and this will list routes that Google has calculated for you as well as webpages offering a bus service that matches your criteria.

If you visit the Stagecoach website and go to Route X13 then you would see something similar to the table to the left, in this case it is pretty similar to the timetables you would see at the bus stop. There will be two tables, one after the other which show the different directions of travel. The table lists all of the places the bus stops in the first column and in the following columns it lists the times the bus will stop there.

From the table you can see that on weekdays, travelling from Haverhill to Cambridge there are buses every half an hour. A bus reaches Haverhill at 0705 which would then arrive in Cambridge at 0816.

If you require any further information on buses or timetables from Boyton Place then please get in touch:
